Perspectives of Young Arbitration Practitioners (9:00am-10:30am)

International Arbitration is constantly evolving and expanding the number of practitioners that enter the field, including a growing community of new and young practitioners learning, shaping and influencing our field of practice.

This panel will be composed of a dynamic group of young arbitration practitioners – the future of the international arbitration community! – who will offer their fresh perspectives on the field of international arbitration. This panel will explore: How to break and succeed into the field of international arbitration, how to successfully second-chair an oral argument and a cross examination, how to properly clerk for an arbitrator during the course of arbitration proceedings, and the trends that young arbitration practitioners believe will develop in the future and need to learn in order to keep succeeding in the market.
